

2009 Outstanding Directors

William V. Campbell

Chairman, Intuit

Chairman of Intuit since 1998, Campbell served as CEO from 1994 to 1998 and from September 1999 until January 2000. For the three years prior to joining Intuit, Campbell was President and CEO of GO Corp., a pen-based computing software company. Previously, he founded and was CEO of Claris, purchased by Apple in 1990. Before this, Campbell was Apple's EVP, U.S. Group Executive. He joined Apple in 1983 as VP of marketing. Previously, he was with Eastman Kodak and J. Walter Thompson. Campbell was head football coach at Columbia University for six year and currently chairs the university's Board of Trustees. He is a director of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame. Campbell holds a bachelor's and a master's degree from Columbia.

DIRECTOR: Apple, Intuit